something peculiarly tragic in this case, and we doubt whether the house would have been occupied had it stood a hun

ENGLISH OPERA. Miss Clara Louise Kellogg is making ex-tensive preparations for a brilliant season of English Opera. Mr. C. D. Hess, manager of the troupe has succeeded in securing the services of William Castle tenor. and S. C. Campbell baratone, the well known "operatic twins" who have not sung in this country since they went off with the Parepa Ross troupe. Both of these gentleman have been singing abroad, in England and in Egypt, with flattering success, and their return to this country cannot fail to meet with a cordial wel come, for they are great favorites here. Messis. Carleton and Mass, the young Englishmen who were so well received last year, and Mrs. Zelda Seguin have been reengaged, these with Miss Kellogg as the prima denna will make the company the strongest we have ever had in English Opera in this country. Negotiations are pending with other artists whose names vill soon be announced, so what we lose in Italian Opera we will gain in English. Miss Kellogg will bring out Ambrose Thomas's "Mignon" for the first time in English. The libretto of this charming and popular opera has been carefully transated and prepared by Miss Kellogg herself, who assures us that it will lose none of its attractiveness in its English dress. During the season Balte's posthumous pera of "the Talisman" will be produced with all the recitative as performed at Her Majesty's Theatre, London, where it drew immense crowds, with stalls selling at five guineas each. "The Talisman" is founded on Scott's novel of that name, and the dramatis persona are Edith Plantagenet, Richard Coeur de Lion, Sir Kenneth, Neclabanus, Sir Thomas de Vaux, Berengaria, Emir Sheerkof, Philip of France and the Duke of Austria. The Opera is decidedly picturesque, and the music is thoroughly Baldan, being both tender and graceful, and rollicking and spirited. Miss Kellogg is at present at her beautiful home, "Clarehurst," at Cold Spring, on the Hudson, where she is working with might and main preparatory to producing next season all the Operas in her repertoire, on a scale equal to the best efforts of the Italian Opera Stage. Among the operas to be produced, besides those already mentioned are "Crispino," and a new version of Fra Diavola, and many of the old favorites. A Diavola, and many of the old favorites. A BLOOMFIELD 12 31 "new chorns has been organized expressly MonteLata 12 40 " for the coming season. It has long been a pet project with Miss Kellogg to assist hard for the past two weeks, and will continue to study until the final organization of the troupe in the Fall. The voices are for young singers, and Miss Kellogg's plan promises to benefit the public as well as the singers, for we will thereby be relieved from the sight of that same old chorus that has met our gaze for the last twenty years, every time the curtain has risen upon an English opera company.

Miss Kellogg is in fact revising all the librettos to be used by her Company, and Mr. Hess in New York busily engaged with chorus and orchestra. The English opera season will open in Chicago about the 5th of October, and the troupe will not reach New York before the latter part of January when it will sing at the Academy of Music for a few weeks.
